What we did:

I use the booklet "Hey Can I Try That?" with students who are reticent to use AT. We go through 1 section a week and I provide the student with options he identifies.

What it accomplished:

The students become more willing to try things and assess whether they need help. I became more able to provide AT if the child will be will to use it. I have seen increases in grades and self-esteem in the students with whom I have used this process.

Comments or Suggestions:

The booklet is available through WATI and you are free to copy it as long as you keep in the publishing information.
